

HSE Introduction to Incident Investigation

COURSE DURATION: 15 Hours

NEBOSH

Course Overview

The NEBOSH HSE Introduction to Incident Investigation Course is designed to equip participants with the essential skills to investigate workplace incidents effectively. Developed in collaboration with the Health and Safety Executive (HSE), this course provides a structured approach to incident investigation, helping organizations identify root causes and prevent future occurrences.

The NEBOSH HSE Introduction to Incident Investigation course is a vital qualification for anyone involved in workplace safety and incident management. It provides the tools and knowledge necessary to conduct thorough and effective investigations, leading to safer workplaces and improved compliance with health and safety regulations.

Course Audience:

- Managers, supervisors, and safety representatives responsible for investigating workplace incidents.
- Health and safety professionals seeking to enhance their incident investigation skills.
- Individuals who want to learn the fundamentals of incident investigation to contribute to workplace safety improvements.
- Any employees involved in reporting or responding to incidents.

Globally recognised health, safety and environmental qualifications

Course Benefits

■ Improved Safety Outcomes

Effective incident investigations can lead to better safety practices and reduced risk of future incidents.

■ Compliance

Helps organizations meet legal requirements for incident reporting and investigation.

■ Skill Development

Enhances the skills of managers and safety professionals, contributing to a stronger safety culture within the organization.

■ Preventative Focus

By focusing on root cause analysis, the course promotes long-term safety improvements rather than just addressing immediate causes.

Certification:

- Upon successful completion of the course and assessment, participants receive the NEBOSH HSE Introduction to Incident Investigation certificate.
- This certification is recognized by employers and demonstrates a solid understanding of incident investigation principles and practices.

Course Learning Outcomes

On completion of this course the learner will be able to understand:

- Why incident investigations are carried out and how human and organizational factors contribute to incident;
- How to investigate incidents and confidently carry out an investigation.

Assessment:

■ Practical Assessment:

The course is assessed through a practical exercise where participants conduct a simulated incident investigation, including collecting evidence, analyzing findings, and making recommendations.

Course Structure:

The NEBOSH HSE Introduction to Incident Investigation Course is structured into five units:

1. Incident terminology, the moral, legal and financial arguments for investigations and management system requirements;
2. Human and organizational factors;
3. Investigating incidents;
4. Positive strategies for and the barriers to successful interviews; and
5. Advanced incident investigation techniques

Global Recognition:

The NEBOSH HSE Introduction to Incident Investigation course is recognized internationally, making it a valuable certification for professionals and organizations worldwide.